Course Time: 6:00 TO 10:00 P.M.

Course Location: Whiting Campus, room 300

Course Description:

The focus of this course is to emphasize the centrality of ethical values such as honesty, trust, respect and fairness in the context of individual and organizational effectiveness. Utilizing Kohlberg's Theory of Moral Development, the course explores the concept of how one develops moral reasoning and the interaction of moral judgment using three Models of Management Ethics. The intent is to demonstrate the breadth of responsibility of the individual manager, organization, and corporation in making "ethical" decisions.

The methodology utilized focuses on analysis of case studies, role-playing, and experiential exercises designed to present the learner with a wide range of topics and decision situations. Such topics include personal and organizational ethics, ethical issues in the global arena, business' influence on government and policy making, consumerism and consumer stakeholders, the relationship between the natural environmental and business and the relationship between business and employees—including the New Social Contract and changes in the workplace related to employee rights. In addition, participants will be encouraged to challenge their own constructs around ethical values discussed in the course of the class and examine their actions as they relate to the models presented in this course.

Learning Outcomes/ Competencies:

The intention of this course is to introduce the concepts of ethics and moral development and examine the application of these concepts as they relate to business and social responsibility. After completing this course, each participant is expected to:

- Understand several ethics theories and be able to apply these theories in real world settings.
- Demonstrate a deeper understanding of the moral choices that are implicit in virtually every aspect of work life by applying the concepts to one’s own experience.
- Demonstrate an understanding of Stakeholder Management Theory by articulating different types of ethical business dilemmas that occur on a regular basis and be able to recognize and analyze these situations based on the Stakeholder Management Framework. At the end of the analysis, one must be able to reach a logical, ethical, and solid business decision based on these principles.
- Engage in an exploration of one’s own personal value system and how that system guides her/his moral and ethical decision-making in the workplace.
- Understand the limitations of Stakeholder Management Theory and the inherent struggles between societal and individual definitions of moral/ethical behavior.
